

A word of thanks

It has been eighteen months since I have used the opportunity to thank those who have been willing to review articles for AfJARE, and more importantly, who have returned considered, complete (and polite!) reviews within the time frame agreed at their appointment. No scholarly Journal can survive without these volunteers. And so, as in the past, it gives me great pleasure to acknowledge the important role played by the people whose names are listed here.

I take this opportunity to thank them, and to apologise to anyone whose name has been left out.
